

Proyecto de ANDALUCÍA

Carolina Marín

Carolina Marín is like a shooting star in the world of Spanish sport. Born in Huelva on June 15, 1993, she was already swinging her badminton racket from a very young age. She trained like a champion, working tirelessly to improve and become number one. Carolina has the courage of a lion and never gives up, even when the road is full of obstacles. Her dedication earned her a multitude of trophies, including a gold medal at the 2016 Olympic Games. Today, she has become a beacon of inspiration for many, showing that with effort and perseverance, dreams are just a serve away!

Fátima Gálvez

Fátima Gálvez was born in Baena, a town in Córdoba, Andalusia. From a young age, she loved sports and began practicing target shooting, a sport that requires precise aim and intense concentration. Over the years, Fátima trained diligently and strived every day to improve. Thanks to her hard work and perseverance, she was able to participate in major competitions both in Spain and abroad. In 2021, Fátima Gálvez won a gold medal at the Tokyo Olympic Games, alongside her partner. This was a significant achievement because qualifying for the Olympic Games is no easy feat, let alone winning. Fátima is an example of effort, patience, and perseverance. She demonstrates that with hard work and determination, dreams can come true, even when the path is challenging.

Luisa de Medrano

Luisa de Medrano was an important woman of the 16th century. From a young age, she loved to study and learned Latin and literature. At a time when almost no women attended university, she managed to teach at the University of Salamanca. She replaced a very famous professor and taught many students. Today, she is an example that women can also study and teach.

Lola Flores

Lola Flores was born in Jerez de la Frontera, in Cádiz.

She was a very famous singer, flamenco dancer, and actress in Spain. She was incredibly talented and well-known for her flamenco singing and dancing. She loved the stage and brought joy to many people with her performances. She is one of the most important figures in Andalusian music.

Granada: La Alhambra

Spain's most visited monument, a masterpiece of Muslim art in Europe and a symbol of the city of Granada. This complex, located on the Sabika hill next to the Darro River, is mainly made up of the Generalife Gardens, the Nasrid Palaces and the Alcazaba of Arab construction, and the Palace of Charles V and the Church of Santa María

Córdoba y su mezquita

The Mosque-Cathedral of Córdoba, officially named as such since its conversion into a Christian temple, is one of Spain's most important monuments and a unique masterpiece in the history of world architecture. Located in the historic center of Córdoba, Andalusia, it symbolizes centuries of multicultural history uniting Islamic and Christian traditions.

Cabo de Gata

The Cabo de Gata-Níjar Natural Park is a protected area that has been set aside to conserve its diverse ecosystems, forming one of the most beautiful landscapes to see in Andalusia.

Frigiliana

Strolling through the narrow streets of Frigiliana, located near the famous Costa del Sol and one of the most beautiful villages in Spain, is another must-do in Andalusia.

Its old Moorish quarter, with its steep slopes and whitewashed houses painted in pristine white, contrasting with the green and blue of the doors and windows, will make you fall in love at first sight.

Parque Nacional de Doñana

Doñana National Park, located between two continents and between the Atlantic and the Mediterranean, is one of the great natural wonders to visit in Andalusia.

Pueblos de la Alpujarra

The Alpujarra, a historical region located at the foot of the southern slope of Sierra Nevada, between the provinces of Granada and Almería, is another of the most beautiful places to see in Andalusia.

Úbeda y Baeza

The cities of Úbeda and Baeza, located in the province of Jaén and declared World Heritage Sites

La judería de Córdoba

The Jewish quarter of Cordoba is known for its narrow streets and for preserving one of the best-preserved medieval synagogues in Spain.

Gastronomía andaluza

calamares a la andaluza

Andalusian-style squid is a typical dish from Andalusia, a region in southern Spain. It's made with squid cut into rings, coated in flour, and fried in very hot olive oil. It's a simple and very tasty dish, very common on the Andalusian coast. It's usually served hot with lemon.

flamenquines (Córdoba)

Flamenquín is a typical Andalusian dish consisting of a pork loin roll stuffed with Serrano ham, breaded, and fried until crispy on the outside and juicy on the inside. It originated in Córdoba, in Andalusia (Spain), where it is one of the most traditional dishes of its cuisine.

gazpacho

(Córdoba)

Gazpacho is a typical dish from Andalusia. It's a cold soup made with tomato, bell pepper, cucumber, garlic, bread, olive oil, and vinegar. It's very refreshing and is often eaten in the summer. It originated in the Andalusian city of Córdoba, where similar recipes were already being prepared many years ago.

pestiños

(Sevilla)

Pestiños are a typical Andalusian dessert made with fried dough and coated in honey or sugar. This very old sweet, of Andalusian origin, is prepared mainly during Holy Week and Christmas. Traditionally, they are considered to have become popular in the city of Seville, from where they spread to the rest of Andalusia.

salmorejo

To make a decent salmorejo, you only need ripe tomatoes, crusty bread, extra virgin olive oil, a clove of garlic, and salt. Blend everything until you have a thick cream and serve topped with hard-boiled egg and chopped ham.

rabo de toro

(Córdoba)

Oxtail stew is a typical Andalusian dish made with oxtail slowly simmered with vegetables, wine, and spices. It's a traditional and very flavorful dish that is usually served hot. It originated in the Andalusian city of Córdoba, where it was associated with bullfighting and the use of the meat.

pescaito frito

For good fried fish, typical of Andalusia (especially the coasts of Cadiz and Malaga), you only need: a variety of fresh fish (such as anchovies, baby squid, squid or pink bream), special wheat flour for frying (or semolina), salt and very hot extra virgin olive oil.

migas

(Córdoba)

Oxtail is a typical Andalusian dish, prepared by slowly simmering oxtail with vegetables, wine, and spices until very tender. It's a traditional and very flavorful recipe. It originated in the Andalusian city of Córdoba, where it was associated with the old bullfights.